$1.80 LB.

HUBAM, Annual White Sweet Clover

- Makes its full growth the same year it is sown.
- Fine Feed. High Protein content, 20-25%. Excellent to grind for stock feed.
- Wonderfully fine for fertilizing. A deep subsoiling plant.
- An excellent pasture crop. A legume of exceptional possibility.
- A good honey producer. Blooms abundantly.
- A profitable cash seed crop. Yields up to 10 bushels of seed per acre.
- Helps control root rot in corn by providing quick rotations.

You can make extra profits from Hubam the Wonder Clover. Sow with spring grain. Harvest your grain crop. Then take a seed crop of Hubam in the fall. That gives you two cash crops in one year. Yields up to 600 lbs. of seed per acre for which there is a good market. Or use the crop for pasture. It grows fast up to a height of 4 to 5 feet if not cut or pastured. That gives a lot of carrying capacity and it is high protein feed, making it all the more valuable. Makes a heavy tonnage of rich hay if cut when it begins to bloom.

DOES TWO YEARS WORK IN ONE

With ordinary sweet clover you sow one year it blooms and bears seed the second year. Hubam does it the same year it is sown. Even if you want the crop principally for soil enrichment and want a quick rotation, Hubam is an excellent crop. Plow it under in the same year you sow it. It will not come up again the next year as the ordinary Sweet Clover may do if you plow it under the same year it is sown. You can pasture Hubam for a while after the grain crop is removed and then plow it under. You can use this crop in a number of different ways depending on how your farm work develops. We have a good supply of seed now—but order early.

LADINO CLOVER

GREATEST PASTURE CLOVER

This fine new clover is largely used for pasture, but can also be put in silo or cut as a hay crop. It has big profit possibilities as a seed producer in an average season.

Ladino is widely adaptable, easy to start, perennial clover, being very palatable and nutritious, high in mineral and protein, producing abundantly on upland of fair fertility. Will stand wetter land than Alfalfa and Red Clover. Ladino grows two to four times as long as White Clover, stems erect, 10 to 15 in. long, covers the ground thoroughly, is especially valuable mixed with other grasses like Timothy, Blue Grass, and Orchard Grass. A little seed goes a long way. Two pounds will sow an acre with other grasses, not over three pounds when sown alone.

You want to try Ladino this year, but you must order early as the supply of seed is very limited.

Birdsfoot Trefoil

You are going to hear a lot about this crop in the next few years. Experiment stations in a great many states are working with it. Like alfalfa, it is a hardy, deep-rooted, long-lived legume. It is fine stemmed and leafy and has a feeding value equal to alfalfa. It will grow on land too low in fertility for alfalfa. Stands a lot of heat and drought and also stands some alkali in the soil.

Birdsfoot Trefoil seems to be free of diseases that trouble alfalfa. The crop can be grown anywhere in the nation excepting perhaps the deep South. Its great value will come as a pasture legume because it stands trampling. It will keep up soil fertility and help other grasses sown with it and it will last for years, if so desired. While a little slow in starting it is not particular as to soil types. Farmers who have grown it think the crop has a wonderful future. This seed is still very short — Order Early!
